The Editors, in compliance with the wiſhes of many of their friends, who were deſirous of poſſeſsing good impreſsions of the Britiſh Birds, unaccompanied with the deſcriptive part, have been induced to throw off a few copies in that way. To thoſe who have been accuſtomed to prefer a different mode of claſsification, this plan will be extremely uſeful, as being more eaſily accommodated to any particular ſyſtem, and affording to the curious obſerver of nature an opportunity of inſerting ſuch remarks as may occur in this branch of Natural Hiſtory.

To theſe are added a number of Foreign Birds, which were originally intended for a General Hiſtory of Birds, but the deſign, comprehending a work of too great magnitude, was laid aſide.
